FOREWORD
BY THE DIRECTOR OF MUSIC

EACH SEASON FOR THE PAST SIX YEARS the success of the Corporation's Concerts has made it possible for the Council to encourage a gradual expansion of the scheme. The last year has been, financially, so grave for the country at large however, that local governments were directed quite early on against rising estimates. This has made the 1968-69 season a very difficult one to plan. The Corporation has managed to find some of the money needed to keep level with the rising fees of soloists and orchestral players, and the Arts Council, who made a contribution towards the cost of several rehearsals in the 1967-68 season, can be counted on for steady help. It is at such a time that the Concertgoers' Society can provide aid, and no doubt will, although I have been at pains to avoid drawing too heavily on the concert aid fund unless something special, like a recording, was contemplated. Only a constant shuffling of works from one programme to another to suit the orchestral budget for any one concert has made it practicable to plan a varied season that is financially possible.

Some of the omissions that one is forced into year by year have been repaired. A Schumann symphony, a Mozart symphony (for although we have had piano concertos, C Minor Mass and Così Fan Tutte complete, we have not played one of his symphonies in the series for five years), Beethoven's Violin Concerto, Scheherazade, Don Juan; all these popular works arrive in the programme this year, and those who like the repertoire favourites can note that there are at least two works each by Beethoven, Mozart, Tchaikovsky, Brahms and Dvorak, and that Bach, Haydn, Sibelius, Strauss, Rachmaninov, Grieg and Rimsky-Korsakov are all represented.

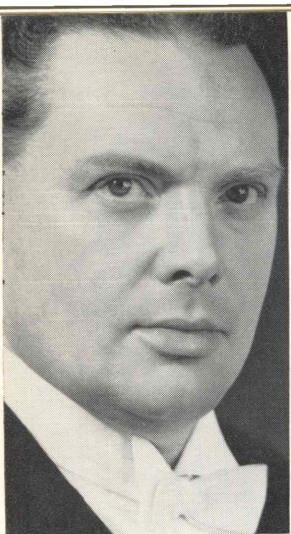

The exciting enterprising series seeks as usual to combine the living composers' works with unfamiliar works by their established forerunners. One of these concerts begins with two works by Ravel which have been popular in the past, but due to the vagaries of fashion do not appear quite so often nowadays. This concert turns out to be almost all French, and includes a piece by Pierre Boulez sung by the Proteus Choir, whose task it seems to be to present us each year with something really contemporary. The Philharmonic Choir has to master three entirely different idioms through the year, two of which will be new to most of its members. The choir is quite used to this sort of challenge by now and takes to the rehearsals with great humour and open-mindedness.

It is possible that the Civic Hall platform will welcome four living composers during the season: Herbert Howells, William Wordsworth, Geoffrey Bush and Malcolm Williamson, the last as soloist as well as composer. It will also welcome a wonderful array of soloists: several stars from abroad, Julius Katchen, Rudolf Buchbinder, Claude Frank; some established British virtuosi, Ian Lake, Hugh Bean and Iona Brown, and as has been popular policy in the past, a number of brilliant younger artists who are making their names.

Of course, one of the great events of the year is going to be the Guildford Festival. The advent of the University of Surrey is obviously going to have tremendous impact on the town, and it is a great pleasure for us to include two of the concerts of our series in the Festival. A work has been commissioned by the Guildford Festival and so our season will have two academic festival overtures, Brahms's and William Wordsworth's.

Such a variety of music throws a strain on the regular performers. A dozen concerts, none of which are to be repeated, the majority still receiving only one rehearsal: these are the hard facts that have to be faced by the members of the orchestra. The enthusiastic reception which you, the public, give them, is a powerful incentive. The large number of young people, too, who attend the concerts is an encouragement, and a good sign for the future, and on this subject two more things ought to be mentioned. There have been many requests for concerts specifically for young people, and it is good to report that the Chairman of the Concertgoers' Society is steering a sub-committee through the difficult exploration of this subject, and though at present it is not possible to advertise the first youth concert, I know that everyone connected with the concert scheme hopes that the plan first suggested by John Downham will soon materialize. Secondly, our guest conductor this season, Arthur Davison, though widely travelled, is connected in most musicians' minds with Surrey, through his conductorship of the Croydon Symphony Orchestra and, with young people, through his brilliant training of the National Youth Orchestra of Wales. I shall enjoy his performance of Schumann's Fourth Symphony and hope to be in the audience for it. For the rest of the season of course, I shall be on the platform, and I hope that you will all, in one sense, join me there.

ABOUT THE SOCIETY

The Guildford Concertgoers' Society was formed in 1949. Five years earlier the Corporation of Guildford had founded a Municipal Orchestra under a professional Director of Music; and the first (and still the single most important) aim of the Society has been to support and promote interest in the concerts sponsored by the Corporation. The latter is a generous patron of the Arts, but the success of its policy depends on an enthusiastic response from the people who benefit by it—that is, from everyone interested in this brochure. By its existence and activities the Concertgoers' Society proves that there is a keen and growing demand for good music well performed. In this way we have over the years been able to encourage the Corporation to continue and extend its own support for such music.

The Society in addition gives more direct help. Corporation grants cover the basic costs of the concerts and music administration, insofar as these cannot be completely met by box office receipts. However, there are sometimes occasions when an extra rehearsal, or extra soloists or orchestral players, are needed to ensure a really first-class performance of some particularly difficult or demanding work. The Society therefore raises money by various methods to provide a Fund from which it can make grants to cover such exceptional items. In this way, for example, a substantial contribution was made to help finance the first recording to be made by the Guildford Philharmonic Orchestra. Again, through this Fund members also provide two annual playing Scholarships with the orchestra for promising young professional musicians, and pay for the fees of a young soloist at the annual Crossley Clitheroe Concert. By joining the Society you will be helping to sponsor such worthwhile activities.

However, as a member you will also receive certain more direct and tangible benefits in exchange for your subscription. Apart from supporting the Corporation's programme of concerts, the Society itself organises its own meetings and social functions during the season: the programme for the 1968–69 season is set out on the previous page.

The current annual subscription is 5/——reduced to 2/6d. for second and subsequent members of the same family or for anyone under 18 years of age. (This is a minimum, however, and many members voluntarily pay more in order to help the Society with its activities.) The subscription covers:

1. An advance copy of the annual programme brochure.
2. Priority bookings for tickets at the Library to all Corporation concerts (14 days before public bookings commence.)
3. A copy of the monthly newsletter Notes, keeping you in touch with local musical events.
4. Free admission to all ordinary Members' Evening Meetings.

The Society also arranges other benefits for its members when the chance arises.

The Society now has well over 1,000 members. They are drawn not only from Guildford and its immediate neighbourhood but from all over West Surrey and even further afield. The Society is affiliated to the Surrey County Music Association and in turn one or two local music groups are affiliated to the Society.

If you are not yet a member, or wish to renew your membership, please use the slip below (you may post it or hand it in at a concert or members' evening). If you are already a member, will you pass this form to a friend who is not yet a member, with a recommendation from yourself—or perhaps even give her or him a subscription as a present?

The Hon. Secretary will always be glad to give you further information about the Society. We welcome new members at any time.

JOHN DOWNHAM,
Chairman.
